INTRODUCTION

Rev. Joseph Warren 7 Healy, MD, DD, LLD, (p. 22) was a genealogist as well as a physician, preacher and educator. In 1871 he was delegated by The American Missionary Association to visit Great Britain, where he remained as Secretary for three years. While in England he spent some time tracing the Hele or Heale Family, going back to Bartholomew de la Hele, whose barony was in Hele, Devonshire during the reign of Henry II, between 1154 and 1189. However, he was unable to find out from which branch of the family our William Hele of America was descended because of the lack of continuous family records. It was his wish to have his records published but this was never done. He died at the age of 60 years and his manuscript remained with relatives until about 1895, when John Rufus Morley of Saginaw, Mich. (p. 15) had a typewritten copy made.

Mr. Clarence Loveland 8 Healy of Chatham, N.J. (p. 54) while working on his own family lineage, became interested in other branches, and in 1910 began gathering information through town histories and vital statistics, and from family records through correspondence with Healy descendants. In the Judge Samuel Bell of Exeter, N.H. Data on the Samuel Healey Branch (p. 67) he found reference to Rev. Joseph Warren Healy's records, and after months of searching he located the copy and added the material to his own manuscript. In "becoming acquainted" with other branches he gathered excerpts from histories to show customs and activities of the times, and visited many places where Healy's had settled, taking pictures of old homesteads and surroundings. He hoped to form a family organization and promote the publication of a Healy History, in preparation for which, in 1913, he published an address book: "The Living Descendants of William Hele of Cambridge, Mass. through his sons Nathaniel, Samuel, and Paul," however, he died before this could be accomplished.

My parents moved from Nova Scotia to Lynn, Mass. long before I was born, and to Swampscott, Mass. soon after. My older sister, Emma L. Brown, (p. 95) had kept a record of family births, marriages, and deaths for many years. At the beginning was a notation from W. A. Calnek's History of Annapolis County that "Ebenezer Healy from Marblehead, Mass. was among the first grantees of Yarmouth in 1762 and was a descendant of William Hele of Cambridge, but through which of his sons I (Calnek) do not know." This notation interested me because Marblehead and Swampscott are neighboring towns. Curiosity as to Ebenezer's origin, and more information about the next two generations, led to research which has dispelled the theory that Ebenezer came from Marblehead and established evidence that he was born in Rehoboth, Mass., son of Paul Healy.

A footnote on page 525 of Calnek's History of Annapolis County says that Calnek himself was a descendant of Ebenezer Healy, his great-great grandmother being Ebenezer's daughter Hannah Healy Haskell.

While searching for data I came across Mr. C.L.Healy's address book. There were two Ebenezer Healys, one the son of Nathaniel and the other the son of Paul, and I hoped Mr. Healy might have some additional facts about them. He was not living in 1961, but a letter to "the family" reached his daughter, Mrs. Ronald Sangster of Windsor, Conn., who loaned me his collection of family data and historical facts on the American born Healys. In preparing his address book he had communicated with countless Healy descendants, and while the records of some branches were fairly complete up to 1936, there was practically nothing about the two Ebenezers. However, his twenty-five notebooks of data on the American born Healys was too valuable to disregard, but allotting a page to each descendant, as was his style, made his records volumnous and expensive to publish. I have, therefore, rearranged his data along the lines of my own manuscaipt, in a running chart from each of the three sons, Nathaniel, Samuel, and Paul, down as far as our combined records go, which should be far enough to connect with most private records. For instance the records of Nathaniel of the 2nd generation in America, includes all the information we have on his descendants before we take up Samuel's line; then Paul's in the same manner. Included are brief resumes from pages of histories, newspaper clippings, and family stories which seem to be of human as well as historical interest. In like manner I have also rearranged Rev. Joseph Warren Healy's data on the descent from Bartholomew de la Hele, which is the beginning of this history. The number preceding each descendant's name is his generation number in that line.

My references will be found with each topic, obtained mostly at the Springfield City Library, the New England Historic Genealogical Society, the Boston Public Library, the Hartford, Conn. State Library, the Halifax-Nova Scotia Public Archives, and The Society of Genealogists, London.

Mrs. Caroline Wells Healey Dall (p. 66) authoress and lecturer, was interested in tracing the Hele family of South Hele, Devon. Her son William Healey Dall of Washington, D.C. wrote to C.L.H. that his mother spent a great deal of energy, money and time in getting "full records" but was unable to find the record of birth of the original William Hele, emigrant to America. He said: "All that we know is that he was probably of Briton or Cornish origin, a Protestant, and of a noble family." Mrs. Dall said: "He came out under the auspices of the Plymouth Bay Company of which Sir Warwick Hele of Wembury near Plymouth, England, was an influential member," and spoke of the family as being found in Devonshire and Lincolnshire. She also said that the ending "y" was added by lawyers copying a flourish at the end of a Devonshire name. Her records are not available except for the "Genealogical Notes and Errata communicated by Mrs. Caroline Wells Healey Dall" found in The New England Historic Genealogical Society, Register Vol. 27, pages 135-139.

Leo R. Healy (p. 24) who traced his own branch back to William Hele of Cambridge, wrote that while visiting in England he had found the family name spelled as many as thirteen different ways, all having a common ancestor. Healy, Healey, and Haley are spellings most generally used in the following pages, copied from the histories, but are not necessarily correct for the branch being reported. Differences in spelling are generally attributed to church and town clerks and to colloquial pronunciation.

THE HEALY FAMILY

"Says the biography of the late Dr. Wordlaw: "There are some people who say they attach no importance to man's descent or to family honors, and despise those who do." Perhaps they may be sincere, but I cannot help thinking their judgment in this matter erroneous and their feeling unnatural. "The glory of children" says the wisest of men, "are their fathers," and I do not see why any honorable descent should not be valued as well as any other blessing of Providence.

And, says the biographer of Dodridge: "Wise men and good lay very little stress on any hereditary honors but those which arise from the piety and usefulness of their ancestors."

I have gathered up the following genealogical fragmentary records of the Healy family, not because my ancestors were of "honorable descent" nor because they were distinguished for their learning, piety, or usefulness--although they may have acted well their part and have no mean place in history--but to gratify myself and those who bear the family name and share in the inheritance of so worthy an ancestry. If this labor of love shall induce the coming generations to cherish the memory and imitate the sterling christian virtue of their fathers, my purpose will have been accomplished. For my materials, I am largely indebted to members of the different branches of our family and very especially to Samuel Bell, Esq. of Manchester, N.H. and the Hon. John Plummer Healy of Boston, Mass."--Joseph Warren Healy

ENGLISH ANCESTRY--NOTES FROM EARLY HISTORIES

"The English Genealogical Histories of Ancient and Distinguished Families gives a full and detailed account of the ancestors of the Healy Family. In English records the name is variously written as Hele, Heale, Hela, Healey, Heeley, and Healy, all doubtless having a common ancestor. No less than five English Post Offices bear the name of the family: Hele near Exeter, Hele-Cullompton, Healey-Sheffield, Healy-Bedale, Marsham, and Healey-Rochdale. Scattered over the Kingdom are descendants of position and wealth, some of whom occupy ancestral estates and are allied to the English Aristocracy."

Says Prince in his Worthies of Devon writing in 1701: "There was Hele of Hele in the parish of Bradninch, eight miles to the north of Exeter. Here lived Bartholomew de la Hele so far back as the days of King Henry II, whose reign commenced Oct. 23 AD 1154 now near 550 years since. From him descended Roger I, next Sir Roger II Hele, Kt., and then Sir Roger III his son; Roger IV Hele, Roger V Hele, and William VI Hele. William VI Hele had two sons, Nicholas VII and Roger VII Hele. The line of Nicholas ended with his daughter Alice, but Roger VII Hele was the progenitor of all the families of Hele in the South part of the country."

Says Moore in his History of Devonshire, page 4....."From a Pedigree in the possession of Paul Treby, Esq., the representative of the principal branch of this family, the Heles from the southern part of the Country are descended from the Heles of Bradninch."

From the Records of the Heralds Visitations of 1620: "The Pedigree of all the Devonshire branches of the family is directly traced to Bartholomew de la Hele, the first of the name mentioned in English History, who lived in the time of King Henry II, AD 1154-1189." The records go on to say: "He doubtless came over to England from Normandy with William the Conqueror and received from this Prince the lands in Devonshire which descended to his posterity. William divided the lands among his Norman followers, etc." Note: William the Conqueror or William I, Duke of Normandy, invaded England in 1066. Defeating Harold II in the Battle of Hastings Oct. 14, 1066, William was crowned King and reigned until 1087. After William I came William II, Henry I, Stephen, and then Henry II. In 1171, over 100 years after the Conquest of England, Henry II began the Conquest of Ireland. It is quite possible, however, that there were two Bartholomew de la Heles, the earlier one coming to England with William the Conqueror, and the other, a descendant, living in the time of Henry II. A generation is oftentimes overlooked when the telling is done by grandchildren.

Burke's Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies of England says: "Hele, Heale, or Healy, a manor in the parish of Bradninch in the Hundred of Harridge in the North of Devon, from the earliest time of which any record exists and, as is presumed, from long before the Conquest, was in the possession of the family which had its dwelling there and gave it name. Of this very ancient family, fruitful as the county of Devon is known to have been in distinguished houses, it may with truth be stated that it was one of the most eminent, the most widely spread, and the most affluent which even that quarter of England could boast....." Burke assigns to the family of Healy a Coat-of-Arms very nearly the same as that of Hele. The Hele, Heale, or Healy English-family Crest is given in the Royal Book of Crests, Great Britain and Ireland, Dominion of Canada,

India and Australia, Plate 37, 14th Crest. Underneath the Crest is the description: "On a chapeau a lion statant gardant ducally gorged:"

Condensed from THE HELE-HEALE FAMILY (Irish)
By Michael Walsh, Editor of the New York Mercury, in 1888

"The Healy family is of pure Munster origin, owing its extraction to the famous EILE-RIGH-DEARGH or EILE-THE RED KING..... This branch was the root of the family O'h Eiligh or O'Healy, but it had many ramifications in various parts of Munster, the principal of which was the Clan O'Healy, Chiefs of Domhnach-Mor-O'h-Eiligh or Probal O'Healy, a parish in the ancient barony of Muskerry in County Cork. That the name is one of the most ancient in Ireland can be deduced from the fact that the putitive founder, Eile-Righ-Dearg, flourished in the 5th century. The name is anglecized Healy, Hely, and Haley. Others deduce the name from the O'Haly family which is the anglecized form of the Irish O'h Algaiel (Algaeh Irish Noble)"--Irish Pedigrees by O'Hart. Coats of Arms:

1. Arms az a fesse between three stags heads erased in chief az and a demi lion ramp in base. (p. 24)
2. Three boars' heads couped in pale ar crest; on a chapeau a lion statant guard ducally gorged. (p. 24) (The similarity between the English and Irish armorial bearings seems to indicate a common ancestor. Titles such as Duke, Marquis, Earl, Viscount or Baron were to be found in Ireland only after the Anglo-Norman Invasion)

Elizens Hele was from his youth addressed to the study of the Laws of the Realm and became very eminent for his profound learning and knowledge therein. He had his education in Inner Temple, London, where he continued in much esteem for many years. He was a good lawyer, a Justice of the Peace for the County, and a person of great reputation. He was married twice and by these marriages, a good inheritance which descended to him from his father Walter, and a good practice, he became possessed of a sizeable estate. His son, who was frequently chosen a member of Parliament from the Borough of Beers-Afton, died before his father. Having no heirs he left all his estates to be disposed of "for pious uses" (a hospital for girls; schools, etc.) hence he obtained the name whereby he is frequently distinguished to this day, of Pious Uses Hele, more an honorable appellation than an empty title. Elizens Hele, a truly generous and pious gentleman, lived to be a considerable age, upwards of seventy years, and then departed this life at Exeter on the 11th of January, AD 1635. Prince's Worthies says: "He out-did Zacheus (St. Luke 19:8) who said "Behold Lord, half of my goods I give to the poor." He rather followed the advice our Savior gave and bestowed all upon them, and undoubtedly his reward will be great in Heaven." He is buried in the vestry of the Cathedral Church of St. Peters.

10 JOHN BART HELE b. 1540 in Wemsbury, m. MARY WARWICK, dau. of Ellis of Batesborough. He was Sergeant-at-Law under Queen Elizabeth; knighted by King James I, and d. June 4, 1608, age 66 years. Says Prince's Worthies:-

"Sir John 10 Hele was by his prudent parents carefully kept at Scotland and from thence went to the Inns of the Court. Although I do not question but that he took the University in his way thither, however, he might not tarry to take any Degree therein, having his mind fixed chiefly upon study of the Municipal Laws of this County, which he sedulously prosecuted in the Innes Temple where he grew into great reputation..... In the 36th year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, being that of our Lord 1597, was he called to the Degree of Sergeant-at-Law and on the 16th of May, 1602, being the last year of that gracious Princess, was he constituted the Queen's Principle Sergeant, and when King James 1st came to the Crown of England, he was made his Sergeant and had the honor of Knighthood conferred upon him at White Hall by that King at the time of his Coronation.

This gentleman was the most eminent person in his Profession of any other in his days of his rank, belonging to the Long Roab; an evident proof and demonstration whereof is the vast wealth and riches he acquired (with God's blessing) by his own industry, which in buildings, lands, and moneys amounted to above an hundred-thousand pounds, a good part of which he bestowed in Charity to the Poor, settling a considerable estate in lands (no less than two manors as I have been informed) upon the town of Plymouth near his habitation where founded a noble hospital for about 20 boys, and richly endowed it for the education and maintenance of them till fit to be bound out to trades. He purchased a fair estate in the Parish of Wemsbury about four miles east of Plymouth, where he built a most noble house, beyond any other in those days in all this Country and equal to the best now. The charges whereof could not be so little as 20,000 lbs. The Gate House leading into it was fit to have entertained a large and genteel family. This sometime belonged as a cell to the Priory of Plimpton, not far from, at the desolution whereof it was purchased by Sergeant Hele who made it a most magnificent edifice. A sightly seat for show, for receipt spacious, for carte sumptious, for situation salubrious, near the sea upon an advanced ground with all the Houses of Office under it, having a delightsome prospect both of Sea and Land round which lay a noble Park well stocked with fallow-deer, whose reflection, as they grazing, might be seen in the marble Clavele through the casement of the Chamber Chimneys. In the Dining Room was a rich and curious chimney-piece valued at no less than 600 lbs. containing the representation of two armies drawn up in Batalia, all in polished marble, done after the life with such exactness that nothing can exceed it, the very nails in the horses shoes are not omitted.

The lower gate, which stands at considerable distance, you might have seen from the upper end of the great Hall, which was of the figure of a Roman "T" unto which you ascend by steps, distinguished into several uniform plats, adorned by rayle and balisters. Omitting other curiosities which might be inserted on there formerly (whatever now) might you have beheld a large and profitable pond, strongly walled and gated, which gate upon the flood opened itself and the tide stored it in its season with sea fish of divers sorts as Bass, Mullet, Sole, Salmon, Plaise and the like, and the ebb would of its own account shut the gate upon them again and keep them all in for the service of the House. A very profitable as well as an ingenious contrivance. They whose dwelling near the Sea affords them the like advantage may find directions herein in the description given by Mr. Carew of a Salt-Water Pond he had provided for his own convenience, in his "Survey of Cornwood" Book 2nd p. 104, 105, etc. .....

Prince concludes his extended account of Sergeant Hele by saying: "He was a person, not only of exact skill and judgment in the nicest points of law, but of great integrity and faithfulness to his clients. However, he could not escape, in his time, the envy of the world which follows virtue as close as shadow doth body; if, therefore, some have endeavored to load his memory with any uncharitable reflections, that of Solomon can excuse him: "Who can stand before envy."

John Hele departed this life on the 4th of June, 1608, in the 66th year of his age and birth; interred in the Parish Church of Wemsbury aforesaid, where is a marble monument representing him and his children, erected to his and their memory.

1 WILLIAM HELE, First in America

Was born in 1613, evidently a descendant of Hugh 9 Hele, progenitor of the Cornwood line of Hele's in Devon, (Herald's Visitations of 1620) as Banks' Topographical Dictionary of English Emigrants to New England, from 1620 to 1630, lists him as coming from Cornwood. Hugh's son, John 10 Hele, married Alice Fortescue of Cornwood and had three sons. The eldest, Richard 11 Hele, established his residence in Neary, but Richard's son John 12 Hele is described in Vivian's Visitations of the County of Devon as "of Cornwood" the last reported as of that place. This seems to be as close as we can get to the origin of William Hele who came to the Colonies. The Society of Genealogists in London have a transcript of Cornwood parish registers, but unfortunately the period covered is 1685-1834; the earlier registers having been destroyed by fire there. In addition to the loss of the earlier registers, the Society reports that Devonshire wills were destroyed by enemy action in World War II, 1939-1945.

American histories say William Hele came first to Lynn, Mass. about 1640 where he early joined the church; became a freeman in Marshfield in 1643, was of Roxbury in 1649, and finally was dismissed from the church in "Lin" to join that in Cambridge with his family. There he settled "upon the rocks" apparently the rocky ridge upon which Harvard Observatory now stands. A street in this area is still called Healey Street. He had five wives and his twelve children were born in Roxbury and Cambridge.

An esteemed citizen, a church member, a landholder, and prison-keeper for ten years from 1672 to 1682, at the age of seventy years he was charged with a misdemeanor. Fabricated accusations prompted by jealousy or vindictiveness were not uncommon in the Colonies between 1656 and 1692. He died within a year, 11/28/1683, and his remains lie in "The Old Burying Grounds" in Cambridge.

1st Wife - GRACE IVES (says Calnek) daughter of Miles Ives of Watertown, married in 1643. However, Bowen's History of Woodstock concludes that Grace Ives and Grace Butterice, or Buttry(s)--see 3rd wife--appear to be one and the same person. Nic° Buttry(s) aged 33, wife Martha, aged 28--born about 1606, and daughter Grace age 1, sailed from Ye Port of London in ship James and arrived in Cambridge 7/13/1635.

(Hotten's Original Lists of Persons of Quality (1600-1700) No further mention is made of the family until in 1654 Grace Butterice married William Healy. Miles Ives, whose wife's name was Martha, born about 1606, in his will dated 12/30/1683, mentioned his grandchildren Nathaniel and Martha Healy. The conclusion is drawn that Nicholas Butterice died, Martha married Miles Ives about 1638, and her daughter, Grace Butterice, became known as Grace Ives. Miles Ives and wife Martha had other children: Sarah b. 11/8/1639, Mary b. 10/5/1641, and Hannah b. 9/9/1643.

The record of the death of William Hele's first wife appears in the Roxbury Land and Church Records, page 174:

"1649 Month 9^{t} day 8 (12/8/1649) Sister Heli dyed in Childbed wth othr diseases w^{h} cause her child to dy & was taken frō her by peeches."

Bowen suggests that the first wife was probably a near relative or close friend of Elizabeth, the widow of John Morricke of Hingham, because in her will dated 5/7/1650 she bequeathed "to William Healy of Roxbury, £8, £4 to himself & the other £4 betweene the two eldest children of the s^{d} William Healy." Elizabeth Moricke also willed "to my sister Grace Allam In Linckconeshire £5". This sister "Grace" obviously could not have been William Hele's first wife either.

Children by 1st marriage (Roxbury Land and Church Records, p. 115, 116, 117)

2 HANNA HELY bapt. "1644 Month 5 day 7 (8/7/1644) the daughter of Willia Hely." Hannah m. JOHN EASTMAN 10/27/1665 and d. 1667, aged 23, w/o issue. John Eastman was b. 3/9/1640 in Salisbury, son of Roger Eastman. He married 2nd, Mary Boynton of Rowley 11/5/1670 and had a son John Eastman b. 8/24/1675, who m. Huldah Kingsbury of Haverhill. "In England (and the Colonies) the legal year began on Annunciation Day, which was March 25th. The change to January 1st took place in 1752. Hence the "27th of the 1st" would be March 27th, while the "2nd of the 1st" would be April 2nd, etc. Dates between January 1 and March 25 are sometimes written thus: Feb. 21, 1574-5, which is 1575 according to present reckoning."

2nd Wife MARY ROGERS dau. of Rev. Nathaniel Rogers of Roxbury, m. in 1650 (Col. Joseph L. Chandler's "Rogers' Pedigree" pub. in NEHG Reg. Vol. 41, p. 165) They moved to Cambridge where wife died. Roxbury Church and Land Records, p. 175:

"1651 Moneth 9 day 29 (11/29/1651) The wife of Neighbor Hawley died."

She died before her father, which would account for her not being mentioned in his will. Rev. Nathaniel Rogers, b. in Haverhill, England in 1598, d. 7/3/1655, aged 57 years, was 2nd son of Rev. John Rogers, a district minister afterwards of Dedham, England, who was grandson of the Martyr John Rogers. Rev. Nathaniel Rogers was educated at Emanuel College, England, which he entered when about 14 years old. He married Margaret Crane of Coggshell or Coxhall, Essex; arrived in Boston 11/1636; was ordained pastor of the Church at Ipswich 2/20/1638; took Oath of Freedom 9/6/1638. His oldest son, John Rogers, was made President of Harvard College 8/12/1683 and d. 7/28/1684.

Children of 2nd marriage:

2 WILLIAM HELY bapt. "1652 Moneth 5 day 11 (8/11/1652) sonne to William Heli." m. in 1683, SARAH BROWN dau. of his father's 5th wife.

(*) He was a soldier in King Philip's Indian War serving from Cambridge under Capt. Henchman at Hadley, Mass. (Bodge's King Philip Wars, p. 373) In 1683 he went to New Hampshire where he took part in "Gove's Rebellion" and was convicted with eight others of the rediculous crime of high treason. He was pardoned by Governor Cranfield on advice of the Crown. (NEHG Reg. Vol. 31, p. 67) After his release he removed to Cambridge, Mass. where he died in 1689. His widow, Sarah Heeley, m. Richard Carr, a sea captain of Salisbury, 2/26/1701, and had two more children: James Carr b. 11/20/1702 and John Carr b. 8/1706. Sarah d. 1/8/1726-7. (Vital Statistics of Salisbury, Mass.) Only one child of her first marriage is recorded:

her step brother, son of Richard and his first wife Dorothy, 8/24/1709 in Salisbury. Sarah d. 6/14/1710, two days after the birth of her child.

4 SARAH CARR b. 6/12/1710, d. 8/25/1711

Paige's History of Cambridge records that William Healy, Jr. married a second wife, Mary, in 1689 and had two daughters, Mary and Sarah, who were baptised 6/7/1696, the same day their mother Mary joined the Second Church in Boston, and a son William baptised 7/5/1696, who married Elizabeth Burch in Boston, 4/25/1723. Mr. Clarence Loveland Healy made a record of this family thinking for a time that they were descendants of our William Hele of Cambridge. However, he found that this William Healy arrived 5/2/1679 in ship Society and located in Boston. (Hotten's Original Lists) Brigadier General Warren M. Healey (Civil War) carriage builder of New York City, descended from this family. (p. 101)

After the death of her mother, Mary was placed in the custody of her Aunt, a sister of Phebe Green, who married Thomas Longhorne, a well known citizen of Cambridge. NATHANIEL HEALY BRANCH

2 NATHANIEL HEALY bapt. 2/6/1658-9, d. 6/2/1734, aged 75; m. REBECKAH HAGER of Roxbury 7/14/1681, dau. of William and Mary (Bemis) Hager, who was b. 10/29/1661 and died 1/6/1734, aged 74. They were charter members of the West Roxbury church and are buried in West Roxbury. He was made a Freeman in 1690.

/*/ Nathaniel Healy was a soldier of Capt. Nathan Davenport's Company in King Philip's Indian War, and was wounded in the Narragansett Fight 12/19/1675. Indian uprisings had for some months threatened to exterminate the white settlers in New England. Bodge's King Philip's War gives a very clear and interesting account of the trying times of those early Colonial days. (Descendants of soldiers taking part in the Colonial Wars may join The Society of Colonial Wars)

He settled in Newton in 1688 at the age of 30 years, where he purchased of Jonathan Jackson, Sr., 26½ acres of land near Watertown. The soldiers of the Narragansett Fight, or their heirs, were promised a gratuity of land besides their wages for driving the Indians out of the Narragansett area, but the fulfillment of this promise was not carried out until many years later. The grant finally alloted the heirs of Nathaniel Healy, called Narragansett Grant No. 4, was in Chesterfield, Mass. and in 1764 his grandson Joshua 4 Healy, son of Joshua 3 of Dudley, took possession of the crown land granted to his grandfather.

Nathaniel's will, made 5/4/1731, names his wife Rebecca; sons Ebenezer, John, and Joshua; daughters Rebecca Thwing, Abigail Brackett, Mary Mayo, Martha Babcock, Lydia Avery, Hannah Young, and the children of his deceased son Samuel. He appointed his sons Ebenezer and John executors. He was a wheelwright and his estate was inventoried at 1233# 4s 9d.

3 REBECCA HEALY b. 5/19/1682 in Watertown, Mass., d. 1/5/1717-18; m. BENJ. THWING 12/14/1710, who was b. 10/16/1679 in Boston (son of John 2, Benjamin 1 Thwing) No record of children.

3 ABIGAIL HEALY b. 9/21/1683 in Watertown, d. 1/23/1772; m. EBENEZER BRACKETT of Dedham 1/21/1712, who was b. 10/19/1677 in Billerica and d. 12/7/1750. The church records of Dedham say their children were bapt. 2/3/1727, the same date their parents were received into membership. No further records.

4 EBENEZER BRACKETT d. 5/12/1792, aged 78 years.
4 AARON BRACKETT
4 SAMUEL BRACKETT
4 ABIGAIL BRACKETT

3 NATHANIEL HEALY b. 9/28/1686 was killed at Groton in the battle of 7/21/1706 when waylaid by Indians on his way to church. Colonists were obliged to carry their guns to church because of the danger of Indian attacks. His father petitioned for and was granted 20 shillings from the town of Newton to pay for the gun carried away by the enemy.

3 MARY HEALY b. 11/25/1688, m. MR. MAYO. No further records.

3 SAMUEL HEALEY b. 5/9/1690, m. MARGARET TUCKER 10/6/1715; joined the First Church of Roxbury 5/1716; d. 11/25/1721, aged 31, presumably of smallpox. Probate Records of Suffolk County, V.65, p. 178, show that his widow petitioned for guardianship of the two children as of that date. Margaret m. 2nd, 2nd wife to Noah Perrin, 10/6/1731, who was b. in Roxbury 1/18/1708-9. They had one child Abigail Perrin, b. 4/16/1734 who d. 5/30/1752. Margaret d. 6/4/1745 and Noah d. 4/4/1788. (Thwing's History of the First Church of Roxbury, p. 135)

4 SAMUEL HEALEY, JR. b. 5/1717, d. before 1756. He was admitted to membership in the Brick School House, Roxbury, 1/13/1745 where the congregation worshipped until a new meetinghouse was built, the old church having burned 2/26/1743-4 on the Lord's Day soon after Devine Service in the afternoon. (Thwing's History, p. 131)

4 HANNAH HEALEY the records say, was alive in 1754, probably longer. After Margaret, her mother, died Noah remarried, but in his will he gave "unto my former wife's daughter, Hannah Healey, what was her mothers." (Namely: bed, chest, table, chairs--Thwing's History)

3 EBENEZER HEALEY b. 11/14/1691 in Newton, d. 6/14/1750 (date, CLH from JWH) married RACHEL WHITING dau. of Jonathan and Rachel (Thorp) Whiting of Dedham, 4/20/1715, who was b. 9/27/1690. (Newton Vital Statistics) Very little information has been found about Ebenezer Healey and his family. There may be no association, but Jackson's History of Newton, page 117, says: The Newton Church Records and the Rev. Mr. Merriam's house were all burnt in 1770; the Roxbury and Dorchester Church Records confirm these facts." Huntoon's History and Vital Statistics of Stoughton, Canton, and Dorchester, Mass., which were one town in 1715, on page 95 lists Ebenezer Healey among the South Precinct citizens that made an effort it (South Precinct) become a town, and on page 641 he is listed among those taxed in the South part of Stoughton. The Whiting Family Genealogy, page 16, says that Rachel Whiting m. Ebenezer Healey of Stoughton; and that 10/26/1730 Hannah Whiting chose her brother-in-law Ebenezer Healey of Stoughton her guardian. In 1962 the Stoughton Historical Society examined the town records, first as a precinct (South) of Dorchester, Mass. and afterwards as a town since 1726, and could find no records of births or deaths in this family. It seems probable, however, that the following three children belonged to Ebenezer and Rachel Healey; named after their grandparents.

4 REBECCA HEALEY b. 1/25/1721, d. suddenly Jan. ye 27th, 1798, aged 77 years, 2 days; m. BARNABAS METCALF 3/5/1745, who was b. 7/20/1720 in the town now Franklin, then Wrentham. He d. 11/2/1799. They had four children. (Metcalf Family, Dedham Historical Reg. 10/18/1893, p.166)

4 NATHANIEL HEALEY b. about 1725, a glazier late of Wrentham, d. in 1749 and his father petitioned to administer his estate. Ebenezer, the father, dying the same year, the brother Jonathan received the Letter of Administration 4/10/1750.

4 JONATHAN HEALEY b. about 1726, a wheelwright, d. in Dedham; married 6/3/1751, SARA JACKSON. Jonathan Healey was one of the Roxbury men who had a claim of the Oxford Gore.

The above information about Nathaniel 4 and Jonathan 4 Healey was contained in a letter to C.L.H. from Margaret Hastings Jackson in 1913, who was then a Prof. of Italian at Wellesley College; a niece of Brigadier General Warren M. Healey. (No references were given, and Wellesley College knows nothing of her records or of this family)

Dedham Church Records say that Jonathan and Sarah Healey laid hold of the covenant and were baptised 2/3/1754 with their two children. Later a son was baptised.

5 SARAH HEALEY bapt. 2/3/1754

In 1721 the large land holdings of Joseph and William Dudley, 50 miles west of Roxbury and just north of the Connecticut State Line, was brought into the market. John Healy received the first deed issued in the town called Dudley, for a parcel of land. However, he resided all his life upon the old homestead in Newton where his father had lived and where he and his children were born. This old homestead fronted on the Dedham Road, and to the west was the Brook Farm property which in later years became quite noted. The Eliot pulpit rocks where Eliot preached to the Indians was only a short distance away. John was a Selectman in Newton for two years. He and his first wife Hannah are buried in West Roxbury Cemetery on Center Street, about a mile from the old homestead. Children by 1st marriage:

According to the First Church of Dedham records he and his wife were received there 10/30/1763. In 1778 they moved to Washington, N.H. with their nine children, and in Washington four more were born. The town at that time was little more than a wilderness. A large number of the first residents came from the region of Massachusetts Bay. They were of pure English stock and brought with them a love of liberty, a desire for knowledge, and an attachment to religion that did not forsake them; and they built the school house and laid the foundation of the church before they reared their commodious dwellings. Here John was an influential citizen and held different offices in the town; a man of great respectability, highly esteemed by his townsmen.

Ebenezer Healy came to Onadaga Co., N.Y. in 1793, purchased land for a homestead at $2.50 an acre, returned to Newton and married Eunice Crossman 12/31/1793. On the 18th of February following they set out for their new home which they reached in thirteen days. Mr. Healy was very energetic and availed himself of the advantages which his situation offered. Soon after he settled there the great flow of emigration to western and central New York was at its height. He was located on one of the thoroughfares over which the emigrants passed, and for their accommodation he opened a tavern and also a supply store, which were liberally patronized. Deacon Healy was a sincere, devoted and very liberal member of the Baptist Church. In his barn erected in 1796, later owned by his grandson Philo W. Healy, the Baptist Association was formed in 1801 and its members were always welcome guests at his home. His son, George, reported that his father had kept on occasion of such assembleges, one-hundred horses and an equal number of persons, free of charge. He was a life member of the Home and Foreign Missionary and Bible Societies. His religious and benevolent contributions were said to equal those of the rest of the Society of which he was a member. He was for many years Overseer of the Poor. He was complimented by a Commission in the Militia from the Governor. Children:

In a few years he had established 30 Chapels.
8 SAMUEL M. FULTON
8 DR. MARY H. FULTON was sent to China in 1884 as a medical missionary, where she joined her brother who had gone out four years before. They chose a notoriously hostile province to carry on their work, hoping, with the aid of medicines, to gain a foothold. Every effort was made to drive them away. They were besieged and stoned, and when their home was burned they barely escaped with their lives. Greatly against their wishes they left for Canton, firmly resolving to return as soon as protection could be secured. They continued their work, renting shops where they opened Chapels and set up dispensaries. They preached to high and low and ministered to rich and poor. Their untiring efforts were finally rewarded; they had achieved their foothold and light was filtering into China. Money was received from the United States to build a new church, and in 1902 The David Gregg Hospital, The Hackett Medical College for Women, and The Julia M. Turner Training School for Nurses, Canton, were completed. That these projects were carried out is a tribute to Dr. Mary Fulton.

"Washington, N.H., July 27, 1814

1 My well beloved brother John, seven years and more have past and gone
Since we conversed by pen or tongue, Why reigns this silence
2 I oft have written since that time, Sometimes in prose sometimes in rhyme,
Sometimes my letters did embrace All our relations in that place.
3 Sometimes I wrote to only one, To Eben Crossman or to John,
But though I wrote to one or all, One common fate did all befall.
4 They thru neglect were misconveyed, Or, when read, aside were laid.
Of them or me when out of sight, You thot no more, or not to write.
5 Since then no letters from that place, I have received nor can I trace
Your looks or voice....." etc.

7 HON. AARON AUGUSTUS HEALY b. 6/26/1850 in Brooklyn, N.Y., d. 9/28/1921 in Cold-Spring-on-Hudson; m. 1st ELIZABETH BRADLEY of Washington, D.C. 12/7/1875, who d. 7/15/1912; m. 2nd MARY THEODOSIA CURRIER of Oberlin, Ohio.

Aaron Augustus Healy was a multimillionaire and through his life his benefactions flowed in a quiet-constant stream to many charitable civic and educational organizations and societies. At the news of his death, flags on public buildings in Brooklyn were placed at half mast. Buriel was from the Presbyterian Church on the Heights, of which he was a member, with interment in Greenwood Cemetery.

He was Collector of Internal Revenue in Brooklyn under President Cleveland; President of the firm of A. Healy & Sons, leather dealers, founded by his father, and like his father he was a lover of Art. He was founder and President for twenty-five years, of the Brooklyn Institute, leaving $100,000. to the Institute's endowment fund, and $20,000. more to be divided between the work of the Botanic Garden and the educational work conducted at the Academy of Music. His gifts of canvasses from his private collection for the Institute Galleries, including a portrate of himself by John S. Sargent, called for the dedication of a "Healy Room" in public tribute to the donor.

Because of his interest in Italian immigrants he was eulogized by the Italian Settlement Society of Brooklyn, and was created a "Cavaliere della Corona d'Italia" by the King of Italy and was named a Knight of the Crown in token of his advocacy of Italian Art. In 1920 he presented to Oberlin College, twenty canvasses, the works of some of the most prominent Dutch, French, Italian, and American painters. It was not his first gift, and his father had made previous presentations thirty or forty years before to that Institution. "His was an uncommonly noble, full-orbed life." (C.L.H.'s collection of clippings from N.Y.Times and other papers)

He was Proprietor of the Inn in Dudley for many years. They lived on the old Major Nathaniel Healy Farm, or Keekamoochaug Farm, purchased (p.35 & 40 and restored by Samuel Morris 8 Conant. Lem was a dark complectioned man with twinkling eyes, black curly hair, and a beard--filled with folklore and witticism--the center of life around him. When his young nephew, Samuel Conant, met him for the first time Lem said: "Do you know who I am, my boy?...I'm General Grant." As Grant at the time was the nation's hero, and president, Samuel was somewhat surprised to find him in Dudley, and on the steps of his uncle's house; but from then on a deep-lasting friendship existed between them. Lem and his father, Capt. Lem before him, were Just, God-fearing men, particularly strict to avoid criticisms and to discredit gossip. Samuel Conant composed the following lines in their honor, to put on the wall of the old homestead:

"Bring here no tattle in Nor take none out
So may the Love of God Dwell in this house." (S.M.C.)

Lem and Libby celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in June, 1916. A month later he died very suddenly. (Worcester Telegram, 7/6/1916)

Hezekiah Conant learned the thread-making business and became the principal thread man in the United States. He interested John Coates of Paisley, Scotland, in the possibilities of the American thread business, and the result was that Scotch and American partners put in $5,000,000. for buildings and equipment at Pawtucket, R.I. and Willimantic, Conn. and built up a business that provided work for nearly 5000 people. Dudley is indebted to Hezekiah Conant for the present handsome Congregational Church built in 1890 to replace the old wooden church, built in 1824, which burned in 1890.

8 SAMUEL MORRIS CONANT b. 12/9/1861, m. NELLIE BUELL FERGUSON 6/1/1887 in in Lincoln, R.I.

Samuel Morris Conant was traveler, author, historian, and collector. He was a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, the American Antiquarian Society, and others. He purchased the Major Nathaniel Healy homestead in Dudley where he had spent a great deal of time when a boy, and restored it to its original Colonial condition, for he said he loved the historical old homestead more than he loved his palatial home in New York. He named it Keekamoochaug, the Indian name for the land around Dudley, which translated means "Echo of Falling Waters." During his evening promenades in New York City, he had become acquainted with Big Chief Tacomus, sagamore of the Mohawk tribe--the finest-wooden cigar store Indian in the U.S.A., who stood for more than thirty years in front of a tobacco store on Bleecker Street. His haughty headdress of eagle feathers proclaimed him more than an ordinary chieftain, and Mr. Conant bought him to stand outside Keekamoochaug, overlooking the site of the last Indian Village that harboured red men in Dudley.

The ancient farmstead is literally a storehouse of valuable historical articles, including many Revolutionary War relics and souvenirs of all descriptions from all over the world, which would take a catalog of many pages to describe. It is open to visitors the year around, with a farm manager, and wife as housekeeper, always in charge; and there is a register book for visitors to sign. (Historical Register of the Continental Army 1775-1783) Nathaniel Healy owned a farm on the Healy Road in Dudley, built for him by his brother Josiah 4 Healy in 1760. An old map shows that nearly all the farms along this road at that time were owned by Healys. The homestead was purchased by a descendant, Samuel Morris Conant (page 35) and restored to its original Colonial splendor, thereby perpetuating the name of Major Nathaniel Healy who did his part for the cause of America in the Revolutionary War.

Major Nathaniel Healy's sword, carried by him in the Revolutionary War was in the possession of his son Deacon William Healy, who gave it to Daniel Lyon Healy, who took it to Iowa when he moved there in 1838. In turn it descended to Abiel L. Healy, then to Mary Ellen Healy who married Mr. Samuel Wise of Wilton, Iowa. No further record as to its whereabouts.

Haven, Mich. married LOUISA HUNTLEY 11/20/1852 in Kalamazoo, Mich., dau. of Lentulus and Henrietta (Hicks) Huntley, who was b. 9/14/1839 in Selina Township, N.Y. Louisa married 2nd, Clayton Mallory 12/31/1885 and moved to Freemont, Ind.

Louisa Huntley was a pioneer of St. Joseph County. When she was eight years old the family moved by canal boat to Detroit, Mich. and by ox team to Nottawa Prairie, Michigan.

Enoch Healy 2nd was not quite 12 years of age when his father died. He taught his first term in a district school when but 16 years old, and he never had to make application for a school after that. While yet in his teens he learned the carpenter trade and was considered one of the best in those days. He was a fine singer and taught vocal music in the schoolhouse one or two evenings each week. His only schooling was what he got in the district schools, but few men were as well educated as he, or as ambitious. He was town inspector of school teachers for many years. In 1880 he moved to So. Haven, Mich. on a fruit farm, where he died in 1882.

Helen Rickley Healy was the dau. of Jacob Charles Rickli (or Rickley) b. at Canton Bern, Switzerland 1/2/1831 (who d. by drowning in Lake Michigan, near So. Haven, 8/16/1873) and Charity Cornelia (Mears) Rickley, dau. of John and Clarissa (Ourn) Mears. Ref. Descendants of Robert Mears of Boston by Theoda Mears Morse in N.E.Hist.Gen.Soc., Boston, and Spfld. Mass.City Library.

In 1912 Charles and Helen Healy acquired 160 acres of Government land on Six Shooter Canyon, Globe, Arizona, which they homesteaded. When digging for a well they found a number of pieces of pottery. Continuing their search they excavated a complete dwelling with walls and floors in almost perfect condition. They took hundreds of artifacts from these ruins, which proved to be the finest exhibition ever collected in the Southwest, consisting of stone implements of every kind and description, personal trinkets of shells, metates, and pottery; and also skeletons of small aborigines. They built an exhibition shed near their homestead, calling it Healy Terrace, where they set up their exhibit and charged an admission fee of 10¢.

This proved to be the ancient Gila (He-la) Pueblo, a ruin of the regressive period of the pueblos, probably dating from 1150 to 1450 AD. The Great Pueblo Period was characterized by the building of large pueblo and cliff dwellings, and waned toward the end of the 13th century. Eventually all the great villages were abandoned. Authorities generally attribute the exodus to a century of recurring droughts in the 1200's with a 23-year continuous drought from 1276 to 1299 probably caused by the denuding of forest lands around the centers of population. In 1956, Dale Stuart King, Naturalist and Publisher of Six Shooter Canyon, was asked by the Globe Chamber of Commerce to set down some of the historical information in his possession regarding Gila Pueblo, from which the following notes were taken:

"In 1926 Mr. Harold S. Gladwin, a wealthy financier from California who had become interested in archaeology through the Southwest Museum at Los Angeles, as a research associate conducted some archaeological excavations and stratigraphic tests on Casa Grande National Monument and nearby ruins. He was also interested in red-on-buff pottery made by the prehistoric tribe which archaeologists named the Hohokam, and wanted to do some work in the Gila and Salt River Valley of Arizona where little knowledge had accrued." (Hohokam is a Pima Indian word meaning "dead" or "disappeared" and is applied in archaeology to designate the prehistoric tribes of Indians who lived in the valleys of the Gila and Salt Rivers)

"In 1928, he and his wife, also an archaeologist and wealthy in her own right, purchased the property in Six Shooter Canyon from a couple named Healy for about $18,000. and in collaboration with other archaeologists began the study of the many and diverse prehistoric cultures which were being found. They established the Gila Pueblo Archaeological Foundation (Gila is pronounced He-la and Mr. King thought they considered the title a byplay on the names Healy and Gila) which they endowed, and enlisted the services of an outstanding staff. The contributions of the Gladwins and their staff to Southwestern science were enormous and their reputation as a scientific and archaeological center spread far and wide. During World War II, however, practically all activities at the pueblo ceased, and after the war the interests of the Gladwins apparently had changed to the point where continuing the maintenance of the center would be impractical from their point of view. The buildings and contents were offered to several colleges, but the University of Arizona was most interested and the artifacts were removed to Tuscon where they were put on permanent exhibit and the study of this area continued."

Gila Pueblo now comes within the National Park Service of the United States Department of the Interior. Approval by Congress on 2/12/1952 authorized the Secretary of the Interior to acquire Gila Pueblo for a sum not to exceed $75,000. Funds were provided by the Supplemental Appropriations Act, and the deed was accepted by the Director of the National Park Service on 8/8/1952, the object of this service being to make lands available for the use and enjoyment of present and future generations.

A book " Ancient Inhabitants of the Southwest" was written by Mr. Harold S. Gladwin.

She was a descendant of James Kidder of England; of Cambridge, Mass. 1649, and later Ipswich.

Daniel Lyon Healy was born on the Deacon William Healy homestead in Dudley where he lived as a boy. When a young man he taught school in Dudley. After his marriage he kept the Old Black Horse Tavern in the village, which was directly opposite the Conant Memorial Church. Stages made the Tavern their stopping place, which, with its ballroom, was a feature of Dudley social life. It was originally called The Black Tavern for the very good reason that its color was black. Its owner, with Yankee shrewdness, had discovered that black paint wore longer than any other color.

He made several changes after giving up the Tavern, and in the spring of 1838 prepared to move his family of seven growing boys and one girl to Cedar County, Muscatine, Iowa on the Mississippi River, which was a considerable task before the days of railroads. From Southbridge, Mass., they went to Providence, R.I. and from there to New York City by boat; up the Hudson River to Albany; thence through the Erie Canal to Buffalo; on to Cincinnati; down the Ohio River and up the Mississippi to Muscatine, where the household goods and personal belongings they managed to take with them were moved by team to their new home.

5 EZRA HEALY b. 4/26/1769 in Dudley, d. in Vermont at an early age. He m. 1/16/1791 in Dudley, BETSEY HOLBROOK.

Ezra Healy was an inveterate practical joker and was known throughout the Dudley section for his many pranks. His father, Major Nathaniel Healy, had in his family a negro slave named Violet (page 40) and also a negro-man slave, and the stories told of the pranks played on these two colored people by Ezra were anything but innocent ones. At prayer meeting one evening at the old homestead, Ezra in some way filled the wool of both their heads with powder and laid a string of tow away from them while they were in prayer with the family. At the right moment he set fire to the tow, which ran across the room to their heads. There was a flash and the whole room was in an uproar. Ezra helped scuff out the trail of fire and was among the most anxious to know what was the matter. About the last prank he played was leaving home and having information sent back to his father that he had died. When he returned and rapped on the door his father opened it and said: "Ezra you are dead" and shut the door in his face.

He married at the age of 22 and settled in Vermont near Lake Champlain; died at an early age, and his widow married Timothy Morgan /*/ who was in the Revolutionary War under General Putnam. Betsey's daughter Laura married Timothy's son Amos; thus by this marriage the grandmother on the Healy side was married to the grandfather on the Morgan side.

Laura Healy Morgan was very small and jolly, with a very high forehead. She was very brave and the best "marksman" in the county. She was presented with a valuable rifle on account of her marksmanship, and she always kept it loaded and hanging on the wall. It was the one thing others were not allowed to touch. Her husband, being a surveyor, was away weeks at a time while she remained at home with her small children. There were many Indians in the vicinity but they were always very respectful to her. She also did exceptionally fine needlework. (Letter from Hattie Morgan to C.L.H. 6/11/1922)

Sanford Morgan was short in stature, very jolly, and a genuine Healy, of whom it was said: "They would rather miss a meal than a good joke." He owned a line of steamers out of Detroit and was the originator of the towing system, with barges, used on the Great Lakes. The public said it couldn't be done but he proved it could. His daughter Hattie wrote to C.L.H.: "General Sherman rode on my father's boat, a passenger steamer between Chicago and Grand Haven, Mich. He complimented my father on his fine landings, saying they were the finest he had ever seen."

Previously a Methodist, in 1832 he became interested in the Church of the Latter Day Saints, also known as Mormons. This sect was founded by Joseph Smith, which, according to his testimony, was the result of visions. In 1835 Brigham Young was made an Apostle, of which there were twelve, with powers second only to Joseph Smith. In 1843 Smith authorized the practice of pologamy which led to a schism in the Church and resulted in his arrest. An angry mob dragged him from prison and assassinated him in 1844. After the lynching Brigham Young was made President of the Mormon Church at a general conference in Nauvoo, Ill. He organized and supervised the migration of 5,000 Mormons across the Great Plains and they founded Salt Lake City 7/24/1847, where he was formally elected head of the Mormon Church. In 1852 he endorsed the doctrine of polygamy. For over forty years this doctrine prevented the admission of Utah as a state. In 9/1890 William Woodruff, then President of the Church, issued his famous manifesto discontinuing plural marriages and in 1896 Utah was admitted into the Union.

DESCENDANTS OF EBENEZER HEALY

Grantee of Yarmouth

In 1758, after the expulsion of the Arcadians from Nova Scotia, a proclamation by Governor Lawrence was received from Halifax inviting New Englanders and other colonists to come and take up grants of land for colonization. One year later another proclamation was issued giving all Protestants the right to worship as they pleased. Planters in New England, having several sons, found their farms too small to be divided amongst them. Free land in New England had become scarce, hence the offer of cleared and fertile land in Nova Scotia was attractive and started a migration from many points. By 1775 there were nearly 18,000 inhabitants, some from as far south as Virginia. At the time of the War of the Revolution a large number of them sided with the Colonies and returned, but many of them remained, in general taking very small part in the War.

The Director of Crown Lands, Halifax (10/20/1960) finds "the name of Ebenezer Healy in Yarmouth Township in the years 1760 and 1767, along with many other Grantees. listed only as coming from New England." Crowell Collection says he received 1,097 acres.

Yarmouth Genealogies, a feature of the Yarmouth Herald established in 1735, gives Genealogies No. 26 in the July 20, 1897 issue (files of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass.) which says:

"Norwood, Mass. was originally the south precinct of Dedham. About 1729 Ebenezer Healy was one of the seven petitioners of the General Court that it be set off as a District Precinct, and in 1750 the township of Norwood was established. At the first town meeting, Oct. 22, 1730, Ebenezer Healy was appointed Assessor. At a second meeting on the 9th of November it was voted to build a meeting house 40x36 ft. and Ebenezer Healy was appointed on a building committee of five and instructed to procure a frame. One-hundred pounds was voted. At a town meeting February 26, 1735, Ebenezer Healy was again appointed on a committee of five to petition the General Court in relation to some officers of the church, and this is the last appearance of his name in the history of Norwood. He removed to Wrentham and probably died there in 1739."

"The records say that Rachel, wife of Ebenezer Healy, joined the church at Norwood on the 4th of July, 1742, and that his children: Moses, Abigail, and Mary were baptised there on the same day." (First Church of Dedham Rcds. Vol. 2, p. 53 and 83) "There are good reasons for believing that these records relate to the family of Ebenezer Healy, Jr., son of Ebenezer of Dedham and Norwood, and that it was Ebenezer Healy, Jr. who in 1762 went to Chebogue (Nova Scotia) with a second wife Grace Bullen (or Boleyn) and seven children and settled on Shurtliffe Point. They had four children born at Chebogue and it is a singular circumstance that no record can now be discovered of the births of these children, or of the death of their parents. The gravestone with the names upon it has long since disappeared from Chebogue Cemetery and the traditional "old Bible" with "full family recordings" cannot now be found."

"John Crawley's Return to the Government of the inhabitants of Chebogue mentions E. Haley at the head of a family of nine persons and it seems fair to assume that Moses, Abigail, and Mary (then adults) were numbered among the children."

It is certain that there were two Ebenezer Healys. Yarmouth Genealogies states above that they were father and son, however, they were cousins, there being only 16 years difference in their ages. It is little wonder that their records became confused as both Ebenezer's had wives named Rachel, and their political activities followed parallel patterns, in neighboring communities.

Whiting Family Genealogy, page 16, places Ebenezer Healy, son of Nathaniel, in Stoughton in 1728. (Page 10) He lived in the Fowl Meadows, or southerly part of Dorchester and served on a committee that: "because of the distance from the meeting house and the difficulty of the Way" asked to be freed of rates and hire their own othodox minister to preach the gospel among themselves, and on December 22, 1726, the South Precinct of Dorchester ceased to exist and became "y town of Stoughton inc." (History of Canton) (Fowl Meadows was so named because a superior quality of grass had been brought into the meadows by migrant fowl.—Essex Institute)

Ebenezer Healy, son of Paul, was living in the Clapboard Trees Parish, the 3rd or west Parish of Dedham, in 1730, which was known as South Dedham until 1872, when it became the town of Norwood. (Page 79) (Clapboards were furnished from this territory, which gave it the name of Clapboard Trees Parish)

The first Ebenezer, son of Nathaniel, died in Wrentham in 1750, and the younger Ebenezer, son of Paul, is the one who went to Chebogue in 1762.

Mr. C. Bruce Fergusson, Public Archivist in Halifax (1960) found the following record in Yarmouth Genealogy, Vol. II, page 529, and said: "The record is difficult to interpret so I will reproduce it here as nearly as it appears in the Genealogy as possible."

Referring to the first line in the preceding record, the "70" beside Ebenezer's name apparently was his age when he died, and 2/14/1777 the date he died. Therefore, he would have been born in 1707 and was unquestionably the son of Paul, baptized in Rehoboth, Mass. with his mother about 1709. (p. 79)

"The Experience of Mr. Healy" (condensed) follows. It was a spiritual experience related in the presence of about thirty persons and he requested that an account of it be published to the whole world:

"With a countenance which showed great inward peace and joy he began his narration in the manner following: He gave a sketch of his life from the time when he, with his parents, first came into this country. At that period the number of inhabitants was very small and very poor. He said that on his first settlement in this country there were no Schools, or Meetings for Religious Worship; observing too that he had no learning, scarcely knowing his letters. Had he been possessed of a good education he might have been a great public benefit in preventing those heavy taxes under which people were then suffering. Commissions were frequently offered him, but he always declined accepting them on account of his ignorance. He further stated that he had obtained riches enough, but that in his present situation they were of no use to him.....the present generation have many valuable privileges, they have both Ministers and Schools, with other blessings; and if they do not make good use of them they will repent when it is too late.....I have now lived 67 years in the world and have had no knowledge of GOD. I was a hardened sinner and knew nothing about Religion until four days ago! Oh! wonderful day!! It pleased the Lord to show me what a miserable state I was in."

"Then he told his Vision or Dream, where he passed through a narrow mountain passage through a dreadful tempest of thunder and lightning to receive the new birth. Then an angel took him, in a white cart drawn by four milk white beasts, before a great Golden Throne in the presence of God to a place glorious beyond description.....and, he continued, I want to warn you all, both old and young, and I beg of you and especially of my own family, to secure an interest in CHRIST before it is forever too late; and have fervent charity to all men, for the want of it is what has killed me, for I saw so many sects and parties of Professions, and every one thought their own way the most right, that I would have no charity. I did not care whether I went into the Meeting House or not, but now I beg of you all to have fervent charity for every one you have reason to think are born again; whether they be rich or poor, black or white, they are all bethren in Christ; but such as worship dumb idols you are to avoid and have no communication with them. He then begged of all that professed to be followers of Christ that they would sit down to the table of the Lord together, adding that if they had faith to remove mountains, turn rocks into bread, and dry up rivers, but had not charity, they were nothing. Being asked whether he had any message to leave for his absent children his answer was that they must tell them what they had just heard him relate and also tell them to be ready when the Angel comes with the cart, for if they are not ready they will perish."

Nearly all the settlers of Yarmouth township were from New England, the first ones settling at Chebogue about five miles from the present town of Yarmouth in 1761. Moses and David Scott went to Chebogue from Roxbury in 1763, and Rev. Jonathan Scott, their brother, in 1772. He was minister there until 1793, when he answered a call from Poland, Me., now Minot, where he was installed Wed. July ye 7th, 1796. While in Chebogue he kept a record of all the marriages he performed and a record of deaths. This record book was in the possession of Miss Lizzie E.Washburn of Auburn, Me., his granddaughter. George S. Brown of Boston, who was working on Yarmouth Genealogies, heard of the book and asked for the loan of it, and it was printed in the Yarmouth Herald Nov. 2, 1897.

A Word About The
SCOTT FAMILY

1 JOHN SCOTT b. about 1702 in Ireland, d. 11/5/1756 in the service of the King; married LYDIA THWING 3/21/1729 in Boston, dau. of Edw. 3, Edw. 2, Benj. 1, who was b. 7/2/1706 in Cambridge, Mass. After her husband's death she lived with her son, Edward Scott, in Lunenburg (later Fitchburg) and d. there 8/26/1792.

/*/ In the Muster Rolls of the Massachusetts Archives, Vol. 94, page 354, John Scott's age is given as 54 in 1756, his birthplace "Irland" his residence Lunenburg, and his occupation farmer. The tradition among his descendants was that he was of Scotch origin and came, when a young man, from the north of Ireland, date undetermined. In 1775 he served in the Crown Point Expedition in the French and Indian War as private in Capt.Joseph Whitcomb's company, and from March 15 to Nov. 5, 1756 as a private in Capt. James Reed's Company, Colonel Timothy Ruggles' regiment. The latter company was at Fort William Henry on Oct. 11, 1756, and on a muster roll of this company dated Boston, Feb. 12, 1757 he was reported as dead, the fact being that he died on Nov. 5, 1756 while in the service of the King. The manuscript diary of his son, Rev. Jonathan Scott, confirms this fact. (Mass. Archives Muster Rolls Vol. 94, pages 81, 354, 358, 493, 544, and Vol. 95, page 131)

"His will dated June 7, 1745, probated Dec. 20, 1756, mentions his wife Lydia and his children Abraham, Edward, Mary, Benjamin, David, and Jonathan. A daughter Elizabeth, born after the will was made, was not added. He also had a son older than the children mentioned in his will, later known as Moses Scott. Moses was not mentioned because the father had lost trace of him, he having been kidnapped when an infant." A town record given in Pattee's History of Old Braintree and Quincy, page 555, reads:

"Jan. 3d 1752 - The following is the first case of kidnapping that we have found. A petition of John Scott of Braintree to the County of Suffolk, sheweth that he was lawfully married to Lydia Thwing of Cambridge, soon after which he went a voyage to sea and left his wife with child, which child, soon after it was born, was secretly conveyed away by one Samuel Spear and now is called by his name; but the petitioner is certain he is his son and has received him as such from said Spear....."

"On Jan. 23, 1752, Moses Spear of Brookline in the County of Suffolk, Husbandman, in petition to the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Massachusetts Bay and to the General Court, shows that his Natural and Lawful Father and Mother viz. Mr. John Scott of Braintree and Lydia his wife are now living, that he has been known from his infancy by the name of Moses Spear, that he can give "no other Reason for his being so call'd. than this, that immediately upon his birth he was put to Nurse at Braintree at the house of one Samuel Spear and even his own Father was kept in Ignorance of his name and abode" for a Considerable Time. As Your Petrs. Father & Mother Aforesd. own him to be their Lawful Child your Petitr. thinks it hard that he should not have his Father's Name, And his Father & Mother are desirous that it should be so. He therefore humbly prays your Honor: that at all times hereafter he may call himself and that by all others he may be call'd & known by the Name of Scott. Your Petr. was Christen'd. by the Name of Moses, yet his sd. Father is desirous that the petr. may be call'd John, but that is not desired by the petr.; but will Leave that matter to your Honor tho your Petrs. Age is above twenty one years." (This Petition is in Massachusetts Archives, Petitions, Vol. CV, pages 408-409, and is signed "Moses Spear")"

It appears that John Scott and his wife, Lydia Thwing, intended that their oldest son should bear the name of John, and under this name his birth was entered in the Boston records, 1700-1800, Vol. 24, page 200: "John Son of John Scot and Lydia his wife 13 October 1730." When he resumed his maternal name, Scott, he retained as his Christian name the name Moses, by which he had always been known.

A list of the children of John 1 Scott, with the dates of their births, apparently in the handwriting of Elizabeth 3 Scott, daughter of Rev. Jonathan 2 Scott, gave as the oldest child, Moses, born Oct. 1730, and agreed in other respects with the names and dates of births as given above from the records. We have also the statement of Jonathan 2 Scott in his manuscript diary that his oldest brother, Moses, was at one time his guardian, and Moses's name appears several times in the diary.

2 JONATHAN SCOTT b. 10/1 /1744 in Lunenburg, d. 1819 in Minot, Me. He was 12 years old when his father died. In 1772 he followed Moses and David to Yarmouth and took up his lodging with Moses. There he became the settled minister until 1796. During this period he kept a record of marriages and deaths in Yarmouth. He received a call to Poland, Me., now Minot, and was installed there "Wednesday, July ye 27th, 1796."

Richard Gridley m. HANNAH DEMING 2/25/1730, who was b. in Boston 3/19/1709 and d. in Canton, Mass. 10/17/1790 after 60 yrs. of marriage. He was the youngest of 12 children. (Only records of 11 found)

(*) "He showed early signs of skill in drawing, which led him to the profession of surveyor and engineer, but first and foremost he was a soldier. He served in the British Army as Lt.-Col. of Engineers during the French-Indian War. In 1759 he was appointed Chief Engineer and Commander in Chief of the Provincial Artillery. Accompanied by his brother, Samuel Gridley, who had been appointed commissary in his own regiment, Richard joined the expedition against Crown Point and later joined General Wolfe in the conflict of Quebec. His plans for the fortification of Louisburg on Cape Briton Island proved to be impregnable. His name still appears cut in stone at the fort.

When peace was restored Gridley went to England to adjust his accounts with the British Government. He was received with great cordiality, and for his distinguished services the Magdalen Islands, valuable for seal and cod fishing, and half pay as a British Officer, were awarded him. He spent much of his time at his island home. At the outbreak of the Revolutionary War he received a letter from his British Agent in England requesting to be informed on which side he would take up arms, and he replied: "I shall fight for justice and my country." He cast his lot with the patriots and the half pay ceased.

Men who had seen service in Nova Scotia and Canada were needed to regulate and discipline troops. On April 23, 1775, the Provincial Congress at Concord appointed Richard Gridley Chief Engineer of the forces now raising in the Colonies for the defense of the rights of the American Continent. In March, 1776, when it was decided to fortify Dorchester Heights, Colonel Gridley, with his usual celerity and skill, marked out the plans of the breastworks and a redoubt was soon erected, where the British regulars were forced to retreat under fire from a handful of American farmers and fishermen.

During the Revolution, American Privateers visited the Magdalen Islands and destroyed everything accessible. Gridley returned after the war but the walrus soon became extinct and the islanders turned their attention to cod and herring fisheries. An eminence on one of the islands is still called Mount Gridley. Advancing years induced him to resign the business at Magdalen Islands to his sons, whose descendants have ever since remained in the British possessions.

He retired to Stoughton (Canton) Mass. and built a home which he called Stoughton Villa. Another house is now there but on the lot the peonies still blossom from the original stock which he planted. When the war was over the town celebrated the victory to which he contributed so much, but he was not invited. He was told that they did not consider him a Christian because he had become a Universalist. He replied: "I love my God, my Country, and my neighbors as myself. If they have any better religion I should like to know what it is." The neighbors eventually became his friends. His death was attributed to blood poisoning. The cemetery where he is buried is named "The Gridley Graveyard" in his honor." (From Huntoon's History of Canton, p.360-4)

2 SAMUEL GRIDLEY b. 1/5/1696-7 in Boston, (d. 3/4/1776 in Roxbury, Mass., Thwing's Hist.p.119.) married 1st ABIGAIL SHARP(E) 1/31/1722 (N.E.H.G.Reg. Vol. 67, p. 372, Marriages at Pomfret, Conn.)b. 3/29/1700 Brookline and d. 5/2/1743 in Roxbury; m.2nd MARY GECRGE 1/5/1744, who d. 10/28/1746, age about 27 years; m. 3rd ABIGAIL BAKER 4/23/1747 who d. 8/17/1781 age 70 years. (Vital Statistics of Roxbury) (Sharpe Gen. & Miscellany)

LIEUT. JOHN SHARPE b. 3/12/1643, m. MARTHA -- and had Robert, William and Martha.

WILLIAM SHARPE b. 1673 in Ipswich, Mass., d. in Pomfret, Conn. 11/20/1751, age 77 years; m. ABIGAIL WHITE dau. of John White, one of the original proprietors of Mashomoquet. Abigail d. 2/15/1753.

"About 1720 they removed to Pomfret, Conn. with their seven sons, three daughters, and a daughter's husband, Samuel Gridley, settling in what is now the north part of Abington..... These new inhabitants of Pomfret were mostly men of character and property and at once identified themselves with the growth of the town. Samuel Gridley served as clerk for both town and proprietors." (From Larned's Windham County, Conn. Chapter XXX, p. 205)

The children of William and Abigail Sharpe, born between 1700 and 1720, are listed in the following order in the Commemorative Biographical Record of Tolland and Windham Counties in Conn., p. 673: Abigail, John, twins William and Solomon, Martha, Joseph, Benjamin, Isaac, Elizabeth, and Gershom.

"Samuel Gridley, cordwainer (shoemaker) of Pomfret, Conn., came to Roxbury in 1727 where he purchased three acres of land from Timothy Parker. He was of the same family as General Richard Gridley, the engineer so conspicuous at Louisburg, Quebec, and Bunker Hill..... He was ordained Deacon in 1736, was town clerk and selectman for many years, and was chosen moderator June 3, 1763 to keep the meeting alive." (Thwing's 1st Church of Roxbury, p. 119)

"Boston took the lead in opposition to the Acts of Parliament, and Roxbury nobly sustained and seconded her..... The name of Deacon Samuel Gridley, many years town clerk and selectman, is frequently met with in the records of the town and is appended to many of the patriotic acts and resolves of Roxbury of the anti-revolutionary period. He filled his post until the year before his death, when "on account of old age and decay of nature" he requested the town by letter to find someone to take his place. The soul of this honest man and sterling patriot took its flight amid the roar of cannon that covered the successful occupation of Dorchester Heights. When the seige was over the old house, which had been occupied by the troope, had to be cleared and the fences and walls rebuilt so that the widow could live in it. Her son, William Gridley, afterwards improved it for a tavern. The house, on the west corner of Linden Park and Cabot Streets.....has been greatly altered in our day (1878) but its frame is nearly a century and a half old." (Francis S. Drake's History of the Town of Roxbury, p. 307)

/*/ In the French and Indian Wars, Samuel Gridley served in the Crown Point Expedition in Col. Richard Gridley's Regt. as Commissary from Sept. 9, 1755 until Dec. 25, 1755 (Mass. Archives Muster Rolls, Vol. 94, p. 61, 442, and others) He appears on a Muster Roll of the Field and Staff Officers in Richard Gridley's Regt. dated Boston, Feb. 17, 1756, as Commissary; Residence Boston; Entered Service Feb. 18 and served until Dec. 25 (year not given, probably 1756) length of service 44 weeks 2 days with 18 days travel allowed. (Vol. 95, p. 192, 195, and 206, and Vol. 93 and 99, p. 236 and 95 respectively)

"Hollis in the Battle of Bunker Hill and the 1st Year of the Revolution" by Hon. Samuel T. Worcester of Nashua, N.H. (N.E.H.G.Reg. Vol. 27, p. 380) gives the first twenty-four names on the 2nd Roll Alarm List made January 26, 1775, and Lt. Samuel Gridley is among them. On this list are 100 names and it is supposed to contain those of such inhabitants of the town as by the provincial law were exempted from military duty either on account of age or from some cause specified by law. (Samuel, age 41, son of Col. Richard Gridley, served in the Revolutionary War.)

Reference from Boston Transcript Clippings 1/7/1907, Family 8911-7, Scott-Gridley:-

"I think we mean the same Moses Scott, for your date of the birth of his second child is identical with that given on a piece of paper evidently torn from a blank-book and written before her death in November, 1840:

Josiah Healy Born in the year 1767, January 24
Abigail his wife was Born December 13 in the year 1766
Josiah Healy was married to Abigail Scott Jany the 23-1794

Then follows the list of children born, four daughters and five sons. One son was named James Scott and another Moses; one daughter was named Sarah. The first child mentioned was Abigail, and the Record reads:

"Abigail our daughter, she died in 1798. She dyed about 3 hours after her sister was born."

This Abigail Gray (Scott) Healy was my great-great-grandmother and is clearly remembered by my Aunt born in 1828. This Aunt saw her almost daily until her death in 1840. Josiah Healy was a shipmaster and made voyages to England. On the back of the aforesaid scrap of paper, in writing hardly legible, is a statement to the effect that: "Josiah Healy Departed this Life May 1-1824 and was Buried on the Magdalen Island May the 20, 1824. in the presence of me Jonathan Burnham being Drown out of a boat from - - after leaving his own house and family April the 4 1824."

Soon after this Grandma Healy bought a farm in Weymouth, N.S. hoping that her sons would become farmers instead of sailors. My Aunt is authority for the statement that Sarah Gridley was Moses Scott's wife. She has told me that Grandma Healy had a large and a small pewter platter, each having "S.G." on them. She was told by Grandma Healy that they had belonged to her mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Gridley. Signed C.J.R."

However, there is evidence "The family removed to Weymouth and lived there, except James" while Josiah was still living. (Brown's Yarmouth Genealogies)

From the Director of Crown Lands in Halifax 10/20/1960: "We find Josiah Healy received a grant in the Township of Digby in the year 1816."

The History of Digby County by Isiah W. Wilson, p. 457, lists Josiah Healy among "Taxpayers domiciled in the District comprehending the present Township of Weymouth, 1816."

Boston Transcript Clippings: "About 1820 Josiah Healy removed with his family to Sissibou River and settled on a farm about half a mile from the Lower Falls."

Rev. J.L.Young, Priest in Charge of Gross Isle Mission, Magdalen Islands, Que., advised 1/26/1961 that their records only go back to 1848, but added: "If I may venture a speculation I would say it is very likely that a burial party from the ship on which Mr. Healy was sailing buried the body in the sand dunes. The terrain of the islands lends itself to such a purpose, and at more recent dates than 1824 ships have been known to put burial parties ashore." (Magdalen Islands were owned by descendants of Col. Richard Gridley, cousins of Abigail; p. 88)

SARAH THOMAS 1/12/1820, dau. of Joseph and Sarah (McKenzie) Thomas of Port Lorne (Parish of Wilmot) and settled near the latter place and had children. Sarah was b. in Granville, Anna. Co. 5/1/1797 and d. 1/28/1878 in Cutram, N.S.

THOMAS: Evacuation of loyalists from the Colonies began in 1776 and by 1784 between thirty-five and forty thousand had found refuge in N.S. Many of the men had joined the British Forces.Digby contained 500 families of loyal refugees. Land grants were given and new missions were being opened up throughout the Province, with ministers assigned to them. Rev. John Wiswell was assigned to Wilmot, and Rev. Archibald Pease Inglis was assigned to Granville. The new missions began to show activity and growth. From Eaton's "The Church in Nova Scotia."

Among the discharged and disbanded soldiers and loyalists who were mustered at Digby the 29th Day of May 1784 were Capt. William Thomas and Joseph Thomas (possibly brothers) origin unknown. (From New York Genealogical and Biographical Records, v. 34, p. 192-196, communicated by Judge A.W.Savary, M.A. of Annapolis Royal, Editor of the History of Anna. Co.) Joseph Thomas was one of the loyalists who had settled in Digby (p. 196) There is no proof that he is the man who moved to Granville and married Sarah McKenzie in 1786, but it is quite probable as dates and names agree.

There is a tradition in the family that Sarah McKenzie, when about ten years old, lived on Bunker Hill, Mass. with her parents. The day of the Battle they were obliged to hide in the cellar all day while the house was riddled with bullets. That night they packed everything they could in a small hide-covered trunk stuck with brass-headed nails, and paid someone $20. to carry them to Gloucester where they boarded a vessel and sailed up the Bay of Fundy. The hide-covered trunk was in the possession of Walter Healy (4th child of James and Sarah) for many years and finally fell apart and was destroyed.

The story continues: They tried to land on what is thought to be the Caten Sand Beach, but a brush fire on shore prevented this. They then sailed back and landed about Shag Rock and settled on Mount Tom, now Port Lorne, where they lived for a number of years. Later they moved to Havelock, now Cutram, and the cellar hole of the old house can still be seen above the orchard on the Healy farm in Cutram.

No record has been found that the McKenzies ever lived in Massachusetts. However, the other great-grandmother, Sarah Gridley Scott might have been at the home of her father in Roxbury, where histories tell us Deacon Samuel Gridley died "amid the roar of cannon, March 4, 1776" (page 89) and her ten year old daughter Abigail, who became the mother of James Scott Healy, may have been the little girl who was among those evacuated. There is some speculation that the Scott family might all have been living in Roxbury, if Moses returned to fight in the War of the Revolution, although no Massachusetts record has come to light to prove it. Their home was in Yarmouth, and that is undoubtedly where they returned. About 1816 "The family removed to Weymouth except James" (Supplement to the History of Annapolis County) James, about twenty years old, "went to Wilmot and settled there" the logical solution being that the two stories were combined over the years and that perhaps James was the one who sailed "up the Bay of Fundy" with the old trunk in his possession, landing near Port Lorne many years after the vessel carrying his mother sailed from Gloucester, for there he married Sarah Thomas in 1820.

When James and Sarah were first married and lived at Mt. Tom, they had an abundance of wild elderberries growing on their land. Sarah decided to make some elderberry wine, so she stewed up the berries and threw the mash out to the turkeys. A little while later she was dismayed to find the whole flock stretched out on the ground dead. The turkeys were a loss, but Sarah was a little bit Scotch and there was no need of wasting all those feathers, so she plucked the turkeys and threw the carcasses in a pile behind the barn until such time as they could be buried. Much to her surprise the next morning the turkeys were running around the barnyard as spry as ever--but minus their feathers.

She would sit flat on some straw with her feet stretched out straight and ride for miles to get to a patient, and "stood it better than a younger person could" it was said)

Walter and Eliza Healy were pious, god-fearing people. They held family prayers daily and Sundays were observed with most rigid puritanical decorum. The children were taught self-reliance: the girls to cook, spin, weave, knit, and sew. The boys worked on the farm, in the saw mill, and became carpenters and sea captains. They were taught that "What's worth doing at all is worth doing well" and the quality of their work was unsurpassed.

Walter Healy was tall and distinguished in appearance, with long white hair and beard, and his stately bearing commanded respect wherever he went. While visiting his daughter Annie in Lynn, Mass. one 4th of July, the children wanted to take Grandmother and Grandfather to the celebration and fireworks at Gold Fish Pond. A big crowd had gathered but soon after their appearance a complete stranger, working his way through the crowd, called out: "You sir, you and your good wife come with me, I have a place for you," and he escorted them to his front veranda where he supplied them with front-row seats. Children:

7 GILBERT HEALY b. 11/7/1856 in Outram, d. unm. in Masonic Home, Windsor, N. S.

Gil was an observant youngster. When a traveling cobbler came to their place one time on one of his regular rounds to make a supply of cowhide boots, the children gathered around him watching. He evidently did not like to be watched, so he filled his needle with a very long thread, and as he jerked it through the tough leather he brought it back up over his shoulder at every stitch, thinking to drive them away; whereupon Gill went out and got a board which he held just behind the cobbler. The next jerk stabbed the needle hard into the board; and everyone had learned his lesson.

He became a carpenter and sought work wherever he took a fancy, be it New York or San Francisco. While working in New York an employer told him he would have to take one-third of his wages in Telephone shares. They were selling for about $3.85 each at that time. Soon after, he sold them pleased with a small profit he made. Years later he realized his mistake.

Gil was also interested in medicine and his Balm of Gilead Ointment, made from the buds of the big balsam-poplar tree, was very soothing. His recipe for liniment, undoubtedly found in one of the medical books he enjoyed reading, was an excellent remedy for rheumatic joints or aching muscles.

UNCLE GIL'S LINIMENT

½ ounce Oil of Cloves
½ ounce Creosote
½ ounce Laudenum
1 ounce Ground Red Pepper
1 pint Alcohol
½ ounce Camphor Gum, grated

Then Shake! and Shake! and Shake!

Aunt Susie believed everyone should take a spring tonic, and her concoction of steeped herb-roots and blossoms was well named "bitters." She also believed in a hot foot-soak at the first signs of a cold, an onion poultice on the chest, and a generous cup of hot sassafras tea. The remedy, or the thoughts of it, ended all complaints.

7 ANNIE BELLE HEALY b. 3/19/1862 in Outram, N.S., d. 2/16/1915 in Swampscott, Mass.; was m. by Rev. E.H.Sweet of Port Lorne, to CHARLES LEMUEL BROWN 6/7/1882, who was b. 4/2/1853 in Mt. Handley, N.S., and d. 3/26/1915 in Lynn, Mass.

Annie could sew the finest seam of them all. When she was in her early teens, however, she wanted one of those boughten embroidered felt petticoats so popular with the girls, but she had no money. She could braid with more strands than anyone else so her father suggested there was plenty of straw, perhaps she could braid some hats and earn the money; which she did. Bartering was done at the store of Caleb Miller in Mt. Handley, who married Jessie Brown and later became her brother-in-law.

Annie could remember the first time she saw fireflys. She ran into the house all excited and told her mother that the stars were falling down in little bits of pieces, so her mother caught one to explain what caused the soft lights.

The Benjamin Brown farm and the Walter Healy farm, although in different districts and several miles apart, adjoined. Charlie Brown was engaged in mending the rick-rack fence one day when Annie chanced to be in the area. The little Healy girl had grown up. It was love at first sight and not long afterwards he came courting.

Sue had gone to the States and was earning $10. a week, which was considered wealth in those days, and Annie decided to do the same in order to get some fine things for her home, such as a silver tea set and lace curtains. In a year she had saved $100. and would have liked to save more, but by this time Charlie was urging her to come back and get married, so she dutifully packed up and went home.

Wednesday, June 7th, was the day set for the wedding. She had chosen Wednesday as it was considered the most popular day for weddings, and it just happened to be on the seventh, seven being a lucky number if anyone admitted to being superstitious. But Wednesday was also prayer meeting night in Outram and Father had been thinking it would never do to keep so many people away from prayer meeting, so after the ceremony, like a bolt out of the blue, he suggested they all go to the school house, where services were held, and come back to the house later for refreshments. Ice cream had been made for the occasion, and just as Father made his suggestion it was discovered that the cream had been packed in ice too long and was frozen so hard they couldn't even hack it apart, so Father had his way. The older guests bundled into the carriages and hurried off to the school house, and by the time prayer meeting was over the ice cream had thawed enough to serve.

8 EMMA LAURA BROWN b. 6/13/1883 in Mt. Handley, N.S., d. 5/2/1953 in Philadelphia, Pa. unm. and is buried in Swampscott (Mass.) Cemetery. When she was three years old the family moved to Lynn, Mass., and Emma became naturalized when she attained legal age. She was an honor student at Swampscott High School, graduated from Burdett Business College in Lynn; became Administrative Secretary at the Springfield, Mass. Y.W.C.A., and Editor of Young People, a magazine of the American Baptist Publication Society in Philsdelphia, Pa. One of her references read that her work was absolutely perfect. She was a sincere and indefatigable church worker wherever she attended, and did much for the Chinese Sunday School in Philadelphia. Her persuit of family records kept us up-to-date on many branches, which became the nucleus of this research. During World War II she took a Civil Service examination and was assigned to the Philadelphia Signal Corp. where she was given one of those dispairing "red-tape" assignments of gathering data from different sources from which a true report was expected. She soon devised a foolproof system for which she was given a citation on Feb. 27, 1953 by the Dept. of the Army and her name appears on a permanent roll in the lobby of the Signal Corp. Building with the names of other contributors of progressive ideas. Two months later she retired, April 30th, 1953, and two days thereafter, May 2, 1953 she passed away in her sleep.

Aunt Ada was a born doctor. She knew nothing about sutures but could apply a tournaquet and bind a badly chopped foot; and could set a bone as neatly as any doctor. In case of accident she was generally called before the doctor, who simply said: "I couldn't have done better." Her artistry came to the fore when the Sunday School needed decorating for a play that she was most likely directing, or when a relative or friend passed away her floral contribution, made of whatever was at hand, would be second to none.

Charlie traveled extensively during his batchelor days. When a young man he was employed on a sailing vessel that ran up and down the Bay of Fundy. One time, during a bad storm when the waves were running high and rough, something about the rigging gave way and it was his job to fix it. The vessel gave a lurch and he dropped off into the water, going completely under the keel of the vessel and coming up on the other side. He was a strong swimmer and swam towards the vessel, just barely succeeding in grabbing a halyard and pulling himself up to the deck. The other deck hands, seeing him climb over the rail, could hardly believe what he had been through, but there he was soaked to the skin.

Aunt Phebe is talented as an artist and is the author of many fine oil paintings, her specialty being animals. At the age of 90 she still finds painting a facinating hobby and spends many hours on this passtime. In her younger days she designed and hooked a great many beautiful rugs; while another of her accomplishments is composing rhymes. She spends her summers with children in Nova Scotia, and flys back to the States in the fall to spend her winters with her daughters Nan and Sue. She says she was brought up in the horse and buggy days but appreciates in full the joy of modern conveniences; the automobile and excellent roads, the speed and comfort of air travel, and the ready entertainment on TV and radio.

6 WARREN M. HEALEY

/*/ Warren M. Healey was a Brigadier General in the Civil War. He had been trained as a mechanical engineer in technical schools in France and became sole owner of Healey & Co., in New York City, makers of carriages and coaches until horses began to disappear. When the automobile became popular he began making automobile bodies.

He was a member of Sons of the American Revolution, Mayflower Descendants, New England Society, New York Chamber of Commerce, and a life member of the Society of Mechanical Engineers. His home was at Cornwall-on-Hudson.

Correspondence between Warren M. Healey and Clarence Loveland Healy convinced them that they were not related through William Hele of Cambridge.
